

In this summer holiday, I have been to Singapore. Singapore is a very beautiful country and I am really happy that MOY can give me a chance for this trip.

Singapore is a global commerce, transportation and financial hub, ranked as the "Easiest place to do business" for nine consecutive years by the World Bank. It is the world's top meeting city (UIA) and Asia's top convention city since 2002 (ICCA). Globally, it is the "City with the best investment potential" (BERI), 2nd most competitive country, 3rd-largest foreign exchange centre, 4th-largest financial centre and one of the top two busiest container ports since the 1990s. Singapore's best known global brands include Singapore Airlines (SIA) and Changi Airport, both amongst the most-awarded in their industry; SIA is also rated by Fortune surveys as Asia's "most admired company". For the past decade, Singapore has been the only Asian country with the top AAA sovereign rating from all major credit rating agencies, including S&P, Moody's and Fitch.

Singapore ranks high on key measures of national social progress, It leads Asia, and 9th globally, on the Human Development Index, including education, healthcare, life expectancy, quality of life, personal safety, housing. Although income inequality is high, 90% of citizens own their homes and the nation has one of the highest per capita incomes. The cosmopolitan and culturally diverse nation is home to 5.5 million residents, 38% of whom are permanent residents and other foreign nationals. Singaporeans—Chinese (74.1%), Malays (13.4%), Indians (9.2%), and Eurasians—are mostly bilingual, with English as its common language and a second mother-tongue language.

In fact, it was the second time for me to go to Singapore. And after the first time I went to Singapore, I always pray to have another chance to go to Singapore.

In that week, we had a lot of good memories. We have been to the Raffles which is the top school in Singapore, and the school is very big. And I had lost there.

The Year 5-6 section of Raffles Institution (RI) offers the Raffles Programme at pre-university level. RI, the oldest centre of learning in Singapore, is an independent public school founded in 1823 by Sir Stamford Raffles. Its current campus is in Bishan.

Formerly Raffles Junior College (RJC), it merged with Raffles Institution on 1 January 2009, with whom it had shared a common Board of Governors since June 2008. The first Principal of the merged institution was Mrs Lim Lai Cheng, who took over in 2007 from Mr Winston James Hodge, who had left the school to assume a position at the Ministry of Education. The current Principal of Raffles Institution is Mr Chan Poh Meng, who took over in 2014 from Mrs Lim Lai Cheng.

To date, Raffles Institution has produced 90 President's Scholars and the bulk of Public Service Commission scholars. It remains the only Singaporean member of the G20 Group of Schools. RI has been recognised as "the top feeder school for the Ivy League universities plus Stanford and MIT, as well as the top feeder school for Oxford University." In the article "Gateway to the Ivy League," the Wall Street Journal named then RJC the "Ivy League Machine." However, more students matriculate into top UK universities such as Cambridge University, London School of Economics and Political Science, Oxford University, University College London, King's College London, and Imperial College London (among others).

And we watched a concert which is performed by the SSO which is a very good show. Because of my broken English I can't describe it in words. That was a show about movie's music of 「宮崎駿」 movie. That made me so moving.

When we are preparing the concert, it was quite a hard work. And I want to give a thanks to all conductor and teacher who had taught us a lot. Without them, we can't have a good performance.

I enjoyed the night that played together with my friend. Although a lot of my friends haven't been to Singapore with us, but I still got a great time in that night.

And my roommate, he is a little boy. And as I see we got a really big generation gap. We can't have a good communication overall. But I'm still here to thank him that made me self very early.

All over the trip, it made me so happy and I can learn a lot of things through this trip to Singapore. And I can learn from a master and made my skill had a very very big improvement.

And is our guides. They told us a lot of history of Singapore. And made us know much more about Singapore.
